The campus of Birmingham-Southern College is home to faculty and student alike, where great thinkers and their pupils gather to engage actively in the learning process. The close-knit campus community is held together by the beautiful southern surroundings.

'SOUTHERN AT A GLANCE

The first thing a stranger notices about Birmingham-Southern College might be the Hilltop itself. Or perhaps it is simply the beauty of our trees in the spring. Maybe they have heard of our basketball team or our average ACT score? These are external qualities, but what makes it 'Southern to us? We entered Birmingham-Southern College with alarm clocks, high expectations, and preconceived notions. Through the semesters we learned alarm clocks weren't necessary--the lawnmowers usually do the trick. Our high expectations were met through hard work and we moved on to our true goals, finding a spouse. Our notions of easy courses, late night parties, and 4.0 averages were denied. We battled V. Markum's history, awoke to classes after those late night parties, and kissed our 4.0 goodbye. As we grew into mature college students, we realized these things were not a part of Birmingham-Southern College, but rather these things and ourselves were a part of 'Southern.

Sammy Sabri can usually be found talking on the telephone into the wee hours of the morning. The reason? His significant other, Julie Hahn, lives off campus. Does this bother Sammy? From that bright smile, he appears to be happier away from his honey, or maybe he is just glad to hear her voice.

Rushton Johnson, Allison Mason, and Traci Aldridge engage in idle conversation while preparing to roast marshmallows at Christmas on the Quad. Allison does not seem to be too sure of the fire, a burning mass of Dura-Flame logs. Rushton and Traci are too busy talking about Christmas break to mind the fire.

We all have talents, but many of us never get to display our talents on a stage to an audience of our peers. In this production of "Gifts", Caroline Hembree is center stage captivating the audience with her best Diva look.

RIGHT BEFORE YOUR VERY EYES...

As if some unseen magician had passed through and performed a huge sleight of hand, students returning from summer vacation found the campus to be a little different. However, this magician did not leave completely, as he continued to perform his little tricks all through the school year. Someone once said, "Change is good." Between the SGA, the administration, and Valley Foods, change had better be good because there was plenty of it to go around. Maybe no little magician worked his magic on us, but rather we are simply observing the ever spinning wheel of progress.

The first change catching everyone's eye was the incredibly improved view of Birmingham from the sandpit volleyball court. Early in the summer, students who chose to spend their vacation in classes were fortunate enough to see the demolition of Andrews Hall, the oldest building remaining on campus. Unfortunately, they had to deal with a lack of parking and red mud everywhere! After all the debris had been cleared away, the question remained, "What is to be done with all this space?" After designing, refining, and debate, the plan for Andrews Green was complete. Construction, landscaping, and wiring transformed the barren area into a fully functioning, recreational outdoor facility. Tim Drewry, Tracy Brookings, and Brett Littleton relax at one of the first events to take place on the site, a movie on the quad.

The computer labs in Olin are a place of study and congregation. Students spend time writing papers, preparing lab reports, designing posters, and completing a wide array of tasks that can only be done on the computer. Rick Jotani and Emerald relax and share a laugh while proofreading their work. However, this did not last very long. Along came THE INTERNET. Students now waste hours of time "chatting" with hundreds of people simultaneously. They surf the Internet in the world's largest source of information to which they have instant access. Or in the case of Felicia Rains and Katherine Redd, they read a barrage of electronic mail from friends all over the world. The Internet was a long awaited and slow arriving endeavor, but when it was engaged, it became the most used piece of the 'Southern computer network.

The room beneath Pizza Hut has seen many changes in its lifetime. Once a meeting room with a broken pool table, and then the mega-flop, The Down Under, the space was considered for a new project during the spring. Students have shown tremendous interest in a sort of coffeehouse for the campus. The desire for a place to study, hang-out, drink coffee, eat dessert, and maintain a postmodern air of pretension forced the SGA Special Projects Committee Chair, Brooke Tanner, to do something about it. Brooke with the help of her fellow SGA members scraped the remnants of the dreaded Down Under from the windows during the day and lobbied for the coffeehouse by night. The result: the coffeehouse opened just in time for finals and complete with friendly students and staff.

WE LIKE IT ! WE HATE IT! AND YOU?

The responses to various changes around campus ranged from hating the improvements to obsession with new toys. Andrews Green was thought by many students to be a good location for a new parking lot. Parking is not a serious problem for 'Southern, so the more aesthetic plan was implemented. Dr. J. Allen Smith felt that in this manner, Andrews Green would serve as a "focal point on the Quad." Judging by the satisfaction of students with the events held there this year, he was right. The Internet was demanded by students and faculty until the day we went on-line. Expert Internet surfers have a tendency to complain about some of the more technical aspects of the server, but most students are so amazed by the linkup, they are not complaining. The ability to communicate with students and people all over the world has allowed the faculty and students of 'Southern to plunge headfirst into the cyberspace age. The only question remaining is, "What will they think of next?" The coffee-house, although appearing late in the game, was appreciated by all students if for no other reasons than the caffeine, the atmosphere, and the source of meal card depletion.

HILLTOP HOSPITALITY

As if it were not enough for new students to find themselves attending a top-notch liberal arts college deep in the South, imagine their surprise when they discovered front door delivery! Veteran students were out in mass for the new arrivals, with Housing Staff, Students Offering Support, Triangle Club, and Orientation Staff getting up extra early to make sure all was ready. It was pure chaos for awhile as new students and their parents searched frantically for the right color carpet, the right truck with their stuff, and Sara Hoover for a last minute room change. When the day was done, the new students snuggled in fresh sheets and quilts, while visions of registration haunted their dreams.

“If one be gracious and courteous to strangers, it shows one is a citizen of the world.”

--Francis Bacon

Eleanor Hagstrom's shining smile is enough to welcome anyone. Along with other Orientation staff she tirelessly "moved in" all day.

Brian Patz supervises the situation while Rebecca Tatum dispenses a little of her housing expertise to a lost soul.

Becky Hill and family wait patiently while Annie Laurie Ingram verifies her room on the floor plan of Maggie D.

Caroline Hibbler and Christy Cox are all smiles on the surface as they manage the fun of the first night of Entertainment Fest. Quest 2 repeatedly provided loads of fun for all students.

WORKING

Joel Abbott and Nicole Forse pump up trick-or-treaters for the Haunted House in Maggie D during the Halloween Carnival. Year after year, RHA events are always fun for everyone involved.

HAVING

Lisa Greene sprints anxiously up the path to Greekdom, as her new Zeta sisters stand arms open to greet her. After the hard work of Rush, everyone loves to celebrate on Bid Day.

The strain of partying does not seem to have taken its toll on Chris Whittington, Blake Walker, and Tiffany Cundith. They will tire, but for now it's guzzle, giggle, and laugh.

HARD AT

Ben Bolton laughs because his shiny black nametag distinguishes him as one of the chosen few, while his assistants get a preview of freshman volunteer work at Preview Day.

FUN!!!

Alice Bacon exemplifies the Concert Choir's model behavior while Cassidy Dowdy studies Patrick Mitchell's melancholy stare, no doubt sad the evening is just beginning.

IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

The academic integrity at 'Southern is no doubt our most prestigious quality. But like a great chain, 'Southern's academics are composed of many links. What are these individual links that make the college so strong? Most students would agree that the academic advising process is one of the most effective in higher education today. The availability of professors after hours as well as student tutors in most areas provides students with assistance not found anywhere else. The campus community and the unity of academic and social circles combine to encourage and point us in the right direction.

Sheri Routt, Lauren Smith, Jonathan Curtis, and Jim Corder are so happy you would think they had just registered for classes. In actuality, they are working Preview Day with fond memories of registration keeping their spirits alive. All students agree that registration is the easiest part of their academic year.

The success of 'Southern's baseball team is as good off the field as it is on the field. Paul Roberts, Brian Hale, and Mark Taylor ardently search for references for a paper, working together off the field as a team. 'Southern's student athletes continue to perform well in all aspects of their college careers.

Amit Talele and Brian Matthews diligently trudge through calculus in the Olin math lab. Along with the writing center, the math lab is one of the most beneficial study areas on campus.

Steve Davidson and Jenny Dollar seem to be enjoying one of the many parties on the quad. The SGA and other campus groups work hard to provide a solid social component at Southern.

Kelly Dixon, Matavia Burkes, Erica Brown, and Tracy Aldridge come together for a brief moment on the deck before returning to their studies. Friends are the best commodity around.

REACHING THEM, REACHING US...

Two of the most exciting and productive projects of the 'Southern Volunteer Services are the annual fall Outreach Day and its spring equivalent, Clean Green. These two days are set aside each year as events that will engage the campus as whole to go into the communities of Birmingham and work side by side with our neighbors to beautify the city and teach us the importance of community service as learning experience. A large variety of projects are selected each year so that as many students and faculty as possible can participate, but also to insure that outings are small so that there is a feeling of being one on one with the community. Lia Pate seems to be one on one with the earth as she digs a hole to plant some shrubs at Bush Middle School. Ragiv Gala and Lia along with most of Mortar Board annually work at the Bush Middle School site, as they have fostered a relationship with that part of the community that is beneficial to all involved.

The bonding with the community is as strong as the bonding of the individual groups that work the day, such as Chi Omega, who share some memories and laughs over lunch during a break. Sheri Routt chose a less arduous task than most, but one with just as much importance: registering participants in the Wheel-a-thon. Most students gained a great deal of wisdom from the days, whether it be gained from a great deal of hard work, as the Pi Phi's discovered in an over grown graveyard, or from personal conversations that past the time. Ismat Shari and Julie Dickard demonstrated their talent with paint and brushes as they assembled houses on the BEAT project site. The success of these two days is mostly attributed to the hard work and dedication of the SVS coordinator, Tonya Smothers and her crew of steering committee members who planned the events over the course of the semesters.

Brent Glasgow, a 'Southern senior' who announced he was diagnosed with HIV, speaks to a large group of faculty, staff, and students during the fall. The speech was a powerful message to all students about the dangers faced by college-aged students and the consequences of our actions.

Michele Bowen and Sara Hoover, the organizers of the AIDS Forum saw the need for education about the risks of AIDS for our students because of the high rate of heterosexual transmission in Alabama, the highest in the nation.

It is easy for 'Southern students, like college students anywhere, to picture themselves in a bubble, untouched by the real world. When an HIV positive student was announced, the bubble burst and reality came crashing in. Brent spoke of the danger we faced as students and emphasized the importance of responsibility and the necessity of protection, such as condoms and education. One of the first reactions after the emotional AIDS Forum, was a demand for condom machines in campus housing bathrooms. Sara Hoover, the director of Residence Life, began surveying other colleges to see what was being done and encouraged students to find other ways of spreading caution, emphasizing the need for education above all things. Dr. Kath Mayne spent her interim doing what she could to educate students. She feels that because of her expertise in the area of biology that mostly deals with viruses like AIDS, she has a responsibility to do what ever she can to educate those around her. As part of the class, students volunteered at Birmingham AIDS Outreach. Dr. Mayne felt that this component of the class was the most important because it took the statistics and gave them faces to which the students could relate. Another need was seen in the area of support for friends and relatives of patients with AIDS. Chris Nicholls, a 'Southern senior, felt that students lived in an unrealistic world and did not realize how susceptible we are to AIDS at 'Southern. After the forum, there was a face and a name that could not be ignored. Chris decided that a support group was needed for friends and relatives of patients with AIDS because of the unique emotional baggage it hangs on those individuals as well as on the patients themselves. The purpose is to allow students to express their fears, frustrations, anger, and whatever else they were feeling and to help them deal with it. The Forum no doubt made an impression on every student. The question now becomes, "Will we listen?"

THE REAL WORLD

Kelly Harper chose to take Dr. Mayne's Interim class and decided that she would like to continue working on AIDS awareness. Her goal is to form an AIDS Task Force which will provide education for students, assistance for those suffering with AIDS, availability of community service contacts for special projects and links to the campus, and service and support, in general, for the campus community as we face the issue.

Dr. Barbara Lester is working with Kelly to map out the objectives of such a task force. Kelly is doing a lot of research at other schools to discover how other college communities are dealing with the issue. Dr. Lester's feels that the group can only succeed in its goals to educate the campus if the group is student organized and student run. Only when the students take responsibility will the effects of the group be felt.

STUDENT LIFE.....

Santa Claus and his elves, a.k.a. Stewart Jackson and his daughters Meredith and Mollie, are together at Christmas with all the students on the Quad. Now that's the spirit--sharing your personal Santa with the whole campus!

Whether they are studying in the library, eating in the cafe, gathering up leaves, cheering at a game, or just hanging out you can always tell they are 'Southern students. It's not an air of pretension, or a look of condescension, or a tendency to boast. It's just that special mix of maturity, consciousness, intelligence, and personality that makes those people who entered as new students absolutely 'Southern by the time they left.

.....THE FUN BEGINS

Marc Hoggle and Mark Linn kick back and relax in their pad to the sounds of good music and the heartiness of Ramen.

Melanie Lyerly shows her "Tide Spirit" to all of those on her hall after the Iron Bowl by personalizing the message on her door. Doors tend to reflect the personalities of their room's inhabitants within a few weeks of moving in.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME

Residence hall life is a part of the college experience which encourages independence yet supplies an individual with a strong social support network. From piled high laundry to day old pizza, roommates learn to share their space and their lives with others from their hall--but most of all they learn to share . . . they share the same room . . . bathroom . . . appliances . . . but more importantly they share their days and nights. Roommates, suitemates, and hall mates share a bond which cannot be replicated at any other point in their lives. They share a common fate of stressful exams as well as the excitement provoked by a potential new date--they share both the good and trying times. Residence Hall Life is indeed a unique experience in which your neighbors become family.

Ginny Neighbor goes to the library to study in the Goodwin building. The library can be crowded, the cafeteria too busy and distracting--sneaking off to a room in a residence hall is usually far more productive.

Elizabeth Perry and James Bullard find some time to hang out before being caught by Maggie D'Option III. The challenges presented by the Option system to new students can be difficult. They must master the skills of sneaking, shacking, internal laughter if they are to avoid fines.

The all too familiar sounds of a tornado warning send the residents of Bruno to the basement. The bonding during weather warnings can be a special kind personified by sharing Oreos, scanning the ranks for misplaced members of the opposite sex, and discussing the usefulness of sitting on the bottom floor of a seven story building if it were to collapse.

BID DAY CELEBRATION

The excitement of Rush concluded Sunday, September 4, 1994 and the annual anticipation and celebration of handing out the bid cards for membership began. Once the rushees reached Simpson and opened their invitations for membership, the excitement culminated by the annual run up the hill to the sorority amphitheater to be greeted by the warm arms of their new sisters. Old and new sisters celebrate the end of a successful Rush and the beginning of the nighttime festivities which include partying with the guys on fraternity row to honor both new sorority and fraternity members.

AOII seniors, Kelly Harper and Ginger Young, celebrate their last Bid Day with an emotional hug. Bid Day serves as a memory maker and a memory sparker for all sisters.

Elizabeth Lell and Amy Rosler display their crafty KD creativity as they await the new members.

Zetas both old and new bond in the name of sisterhood.

Alpha Chi's gather to welcome their new members with open arms.

Chi Omega's Missy Hill and Laura Hardwick wait with anticipation for their new member class to run up the hill.

Pi Phi's gather to honor their new sisters and welcome them to the party.

HANGIN' ON CAMPUS

After a hard day of classes the last thing many students want to do is return to their cooped up residence hall room when there is so much to do and so many people to see on the Quad. Instead BSC students find alternate ways to spend their time. Whether they are just relaxing or cramming for the next exam, many students enjoy the hanging out on the steps in front of the library, laying out on the quad, or sitting on the picnic tables of the newly renovated Andrews Green. The idea is not to be seen or to be heard--the idea is simply to be and for most 'Southern students, being in the sun and stars is much better than a bright 200 watt bulb and those silly glow stars.

Marie Shunnarah, Lindsey Tanner, and Carolyn Lewis were found on the residence hall quad soaking up some rays. Tanning must be done whenever possible because the weather is never kind on the Hilltop.

Tommy Bush and Jonathan Winzeler are arm and arm enjoying the night sky. Most mixers rarely stay inside the houses--they quickly move to the front porches where space and air increase comfort and communication.

Elizabeth Donald and Mary Stowe Mareno study intensely on the residence hall quad. The deck is the highlight of social activity during the first weeks of school and continues as a meeting place, eating place, and study center as the year goes on.

An all too familiar site: the cafeteria catered meals on the residence hall quad. It's grandma's cookies, polystyrene plates, napkins flying everywhere--but, golly, it sure is fun!

Spelunking anyone? Scott Hofer and Aaron Knopp participate in Under Earth Day, which encouraged cave conservation and education. SOAK, Southern Outdoor Adventure Club, headed by Hofer offered outdoor events off campus similar to spelunking throughout the year.

Bush Middle School students were tutored by many BSC students like Amy Newman. Because Bush Middle School was BSC's Adopt-a-School partner, many groups worked with the facility throughout the year.

SVS: VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

Southern Volunteer Services is a popular outlet which enables Southern students to become more involved with the greater Birmingham community through volunteer work. SVS offers a wide variety of programs which raise national consciousness such as Amnesty International, as well as other programs which are focused on local concerns such as Habitat for Humanity. As a result of the programs provided by SVS, BSC students are able to enrich other people's lives while maturing into a more well rounded individual.

Student Coordinator, Theresa Berrell was thanked with a hug and a kiss from one of the women at the First Presbyterian Women's Shelter.

Habitat for Humanity had another successful year at Southern due to the endurance and dedication of many BSC students.

Rob Colbert works hard to keep the mail in order in the campus post office.

Do you have a job on campus? A great many people seem to need to supplement the cost of their education with a work study job or some other type of employment that will bring in some cash. It could be that your financial aid package includes an interlude at one of the many offices around campus as a work study, or perhaps you just need some extra cash for those weekend parties. Whatever the reason, a great deal of 'Southern students spend their time employed. On top of studying, it can be a real challenge, but for the most part, money talks and students always listen.

Andrea Martin runs "important" errands to the Bookstore for her workstudy.

Chick-Fil-A is helped by the dependable Thomas Bain on a regular basis.

Wes Fenner now has the "salesman smile" as a result of his employment in the BSC Bookstore.

ENTERTAINMENT FEST: THE PARTY STARTS HERE!

Entertainment Festival is Quest II's answer to the Fall Semester blahs. This two day event sparked up the night life of the campus by providing entertainment from a comedian, Karen Kilgraff, on Thursday night which got the students pumped for the weekend band party. The bands featured this year were the Grapes, Maure Haure, and other famous groups. Students needed a weekend of fun before the workload of the semester really started to pile up.

Comedian Karen Kilgraff entertained BSC students on Andrews Green with her charming wit and down to earth humor--HA--the only laughter came when her sign symbolically fell flat on its face.

BSC students did have the opportunity to try out the new and improved Andrew's Green during Kilgraf's routine--it wasn't a total loss.

Quest II enacts the biannual stamping of the hands. Underage drinking is difficult to monitor in a tent full of several hundred gyrating bodies, but a best effort is made to keep the night safe for all partiers.

The Grapes performed their set for Southern students. The acts worked out very well as the tent stayed full and loud all evening long.

Some of the bands even performed parlor tricks like swallowing a microphone. The entertainment was unforgettable.

Andria Melgren, Lisa Newman, Donna Campbell, and Lauren Doyle are all smiles and adrenaline as they await the next set. The tent was intensely hot, but people rarely left hoping to push their way to the front of the stage so they could really feel the music-vibrating their spinal cords?!

Snowwwwwwwww. . . .

During the first days of February BSC experienced its first major snowfall of the year and the students were found shivering but right in the middle of all the frigid action. From the dorm quad to the academic quad, students celebrated this infrequent weather pattern by participating in snowball fights, building miniature snowmen, and sledding down the treacherous hills leading to Bruno and Fraternity Row. After the rush of celebration, students activity level dwindled once red-handed and out of breath.

Tracy Brookings and Lindsey Tanner enjoy the Winter Wonderland.

Ben McLaughlin and Mary Catherine Richardson snuggle for some warmth amidst the flying flakes.

Leanne Bankester and Cheryl Crumpton play "hard ball" in the snow.

These girls demonstrate that it is possible to retain ones glamorous appearance and play in the snow at the same time.

The BSC basketball team triumphs again. The Homecoming game was really cake as the Panthers had already proven themselves nearly unstoppable.

The crowd at Homecoming tends to be the biggest of a normal year--but what crowd would be complete without our cute little Dennis Leary look-a-like, Zach Edwards. As with almost every sporting event, Zach and his jolly band of Sigma Nu's were on hand to taunt the opponents, referees, and fans of the other team.

TAKE ME TO BOURBON STREET

Homecoming for the 1994-95 school year proved to be a celebration of many sorts. The basketball team's win in this game helped them to get one step closer to the National Championship and also students celebrated comradery throughout the week. There were various activities which occurred throughout the week in the caf. One of the most memorable was the Moonpie eating contest in which James Bullard single handedly won and also the great crawfish bake complete with non-alcoholic Hurricanes. The week wound down Saturday night to the Sounds of Motown and a salute to the BSC basketball team.

The Moonpie Feast is on!

The non-alcoholic Hurricanes were a real success. Homecoming festivities have traditionally been ladden with competition between organizations on campus but this homecoming took a much more relaxed pace, in accordance with the theme.

The Sounds of Motown were groovin' off stage as much as on stage. You don't perform at a BSC Homecoming unless you've got the stuff and they certainly displayed their fair share.

BIRMINGHAM SALUTES THE

Homecoming representatives and attendants patiently wait while the newly crowned Homecoming Queen greets her audience.

QUEENS ON THE COURT

During the Homecoming game, 'Southern followed the annual tradition of announcing the Homecoming Queen and her court during half-time. The freshman class was represented by Lauren Doyle and Mollie Jackson. The sophomores elected Louisa Carlile and Meredith Jackson to be their chosen representatives, while the Juniors chose Mary Louis Poindexter, Amy Rosler, and Heather Workman. The student body as a whole crowned Ashley Boatright as their queen and seniors Amy Booth, Julie Dykes, Nixon Harris, Julie Payne, and Mary Alex Tampary as her attendants. Following tradition, the queen was crowned and all representatives were presented with flowers before the half-time festivities began.

Dr. Berte congratulates Ashley after she is crowned.

Dr. and Mrs. Berte join Ashley Boatright and her escort, Jeff Colvin at the conclusion of the ceremony.

THE CELLAR

The opening of The Cellar, the campus coffeeshouse was an exciting event which occurred in April. Many students anticipated the sounds of coffee bean grinders and smells of frothy cappuccinos. The Cellar provides Southern students with a comfortable relaxing atmosphere complete with gourmet desserts and coffees which can be purchased on the meal card. Also, on designated nights BSC students get to show off their hidden talents by participating in Open Mic Night. Besides entertainment and relaxation, The Cellar also provides employment opportunities to students on campus.

Wade Griffith and Jason Searey enjoy two frothy ones and some company. Jason is obviously not aware that drinking hot liquids with a straw is very dangerous—Wade might pop him in the back of the head and drive it right through his skull or he could burn his tongue.

Ummm ... hmmm ...
COFFEE.

Casey Carlisle, Ivanna Livinston, and Mary Bendall consider cappuccino king. The wide variety of flavors of both food and drink has made The Cellar one of the most popular hangouts on campus and a sugary substitute for the health trendy cafeteria.

LOOK WHAT'S GOING DOWN

Dr. and Mrs. Berte join the students to celebrate opening night. A large array of faculty and staff frequented the coffee house and shared conversation with students, a situation not common in the other eating areas.

Laura Hammett KNOWS coffee...well, at least, she knows how to make a really good cup of it. The all student staff of the coffee house made it all the more enjoyable and friendly for students.

Herb Williams always provides guidance to those who are new to the coffee world. As the Student Manager of the coffee house, Herb dually handled the task of waiting on customers and managing the staff with the skills of a professional.

Quest II's Southern Comfort is a welcomed event which gives 'Southern students a break in the spring before final exams begin. The daytime activities included virtual reality, jousting matches, and sumo wrestling on the dorm quad. And as always, the free treats like cotton candy were popular crowd pleasers. As the day turned to night, 'Southern students returned to enjoy band acts such as the Fred Dolomite Band and the headliner Jack-O-Pierce. Southern definitely experienced an entertaining two days of activities, food, and great entertainment.

SOUTHERN COMFORT: THE PARTY CONTINUES

Ben McLaughlin does not seem to mind the odd view he is getting at his feet as long as he is having fun. Hundreds of people suited up in very warm Velcro suits to throw themselves at a wall-normal college fun.

Mark Osborne seems a little mixed up. Spinning in 3 dimensions simulataneously is not all that bad--unless you had the turkey tetrazini for lunch.

Kappa Delta cooled the day down by "assassinating" friends for fifty cents.

Whoever said Virtuality was easy left out a lot of us were playing. Most students agree. "I cool or something."

David Miller and Tommy Bush are taking out pent up male frustrations on each other in Joa.

David Precise, Cotton Candy Master, whirls some cones for 'Southern Comfort attendees.

THE KEY TO SURVIVAL: FRIENDS

A&FA: THE TALENT

How does Wes Fenner ever find time to study when he is always working in the bookstore? The grin is hiding his secret.

The academics at 'Southern are considered among the most rigorous in the world by our current students. The challenges they face prepare them for still further challenges, however, because life is a continual struggle, not a quick game of cards. But it takes talent to make it through and that is something of which our students have a great reserve. Music, art, sports, brains, skills, and personality all combine just right to produce the functioning college graduate.

AND BRAINS SECTION

THINKING INDEPENDENTLY...

Libby Hill and Lyndon Box enjoy a sunny day by the fountain as they work. The benches around the fountain and all around campus are great places to expand your mind to the wonders of higher education. Hays Evans types away on a paper in the Harbert computer lab. Southern is fortunate to have an incredible computer network that provides not only Internet, but also a wide range of programs that aide in completing the many assignments that college presents. DeeAnn Miller catches some rays in the amphitheater while catching up on her reading. For those who want to work on their tan and study, the large grassy areas all over campus provide fresh air, UV, and quiet. Laura Gibson takes a break and wonders if she hasn't leaned the important things already. The residence hall can be a great place to learn all of the lessons that are not taught in the classroom. The true learning that must be done is college is not a matter of grades or classes, but rather is a process of maturing and becoming a conscious member of society--able to handle all the responsibilities that go with it.

'SOUTHERN ACADEMIA

"...To Think Independently and Communicate Clearly..."

The above quote comes from the Mission Statement on page 10 of the Birmingham-Southern College Catalog. What does make 'Southern different from another college/university? The answer isn't as trite as the question. The mission of BSC is to turn us into rational independent beings. The idea behind this, behind liberal arts, is that there is not a set structure to learning - that there is more to learning than the lecture and the syllabus.

‘SOUTHERN SAILINGS...

Interim is an important part of the BSC academic calendar. It gives students many options-- concentrated research, enrichment study, or the chance to branch out in an entirely new area. One of the most popular routes to new learning has been the “Sailing a Tall Ship” interim.

1) Top Left: The ship is classroom and home for three weeks. 2) Top Right: Students wrestle with sails and the elements to keep their heads--and their boat--above water. 3) Middle Left: The islands of the Carribbean offer plenty of exotic dining. 4) Bottom Left: No wonder they call this “look-out”!

LITERARY THOUGHTS

Bradbury

Ray Bradbury, regarded as the most important figure in science fiction writing, served as Grand Master of 1994 Writing Today--The 15th Annual Writer's Conference at Birmingham-Southern College on March 10-11, 1995. The Conference brought together writers, editors, agents and other literary professionals from around the nation for a two day series of workshops and lectures on the literary arts, as well as practical information necessary to the craft of writing.

Among the best known of Bradbury's 30 books are Martian Chronicles, and The Illustrated Man.

Keneally

Dr. Thomas Keneally, author of Shindler's List, the novel upon which Steven Spielberg based his Academy Award winning movie, spoke at Birmingham-Southern College on November 29, 1994.

Dr. Keneally's lecture in Hill Recital Hall was open to the public. He talked about his experience with Shindler's List. The novel won the Booker Prize for Fiction, Britain's most prestigious book prize, in 1982, and the Los Angeles Times Prize for Fiction in 1983.

Dr. Lola Kiser has dedicatedly been teaching calculus to BSC students since many of our parents were here.

This is Dr. Samuel Stayer, mainstay of the history department, with his daughter's beautiful artwork in the background.

PAID TO THINK....

Natalie Davis, our Dean of Graduate and Adult Studies and professor of political science, demonstrates that winning politician's smile.

Dr. N. Bosmia of the math department is always busy.

AND OTHERS WHO HELP US THINK

The library is a place of study and research. Leslie West (right top), new this year, makes the atmosphere positive with her "get it done with a smile" attitude.

Charlotte Ford, left, is in charge of references; if she can't find it, we don't have it.

And no matter what language you're trying to learn, language lab director Andra Davis (bottom right) can get you through it--just in time for class.

Dr. Fred Ashe moves one of his English classes outdoors.

THINKING IN CLASS

Emily Lynch and Jennifer Kelly are busy with an archeology dig (behind the old boiler plant).

The bench by the science lab center is good for other subjects too-like Spanish classes with Senora Ceballos.

THINKING AROUND

Clockwise from top left. Biology students on the second floor of Phillips pay close attention to the lecture. Tyng stops by BSC's Writing Center, where students can always find help for a troubling paper! And Senior Tonya Alexander digs through the Career Library, knowing it's never too early to start preparing for life after the Hilltop.

THINKING ABOUT THE ENVIRONMENT

Lewis Armstrong is among the most active participants in the BSC Conservancy Program.

The Environment Resource Center includes a vivid depiction of how trash has increase-and how to make it beautiful..

These are only a few of the hundreds of grade-school kids who annually enjoy the resources the campus provides to the community.

THINKING ELECTRONICALLY

Clockwise from top left. Piloting the primary computer equipment in Olin is a snap for Austin Wimberly. The library computers are good for more than just looking up books. Kyle Shaw and Ben Assaf confront a machine in Olin, again out to prove who runs who!

THINKING INTERNATIONALLY

It's a pretty tall undertaking to be a foreign student at BSC. You probably arrive without having been in this country very long. Your native language is probably not English. You're thousands of miles from home. And to cap it all off, you've never heard anything like an Alabama accent in your life.

Fortunately, BSC's international students face up to the challenge and come away as some of the most successful students. Allan Chinda left his native Zimbabwe, where BSC's Methodist connections gave the school a bit of a recruiting edge, and is currently involved in just about everything—even being an RA in North. Yuka Sato has been here two years, and there have been harrowing moments. When the earthquakes erupted in Japan this year, she hurried to be sure her family was all right.

THINKING ABOUT DEFENSE

The Women's Forum at BSC continues to grow. Led by Jeanne Jackson, the Forums brought speakers, paper presentations, and avid discussion to the Hilltop. The one shown is a self-defense seminar. To the left, Captain Jaunita Easton is demonstrating the "twist and pull" technique.

LOTS OF THOUGHTS

Studying in the Harbert Plaza is always great for sun or shade and quiet.

When all else fails, there is osmosis.

Chris takes a break on the quad to show us what he did on his spring break.

Susan Willard does her reading in a library carrel.

Leila stops by Pizza Hut for an afternoon snack.

Scarlett Forse fights through homework in her Bruno suite.

Adrienne Simon, Cyndy Hewgley, and Stephanie Criddle, backstage after another successful Spring Dance Performance.

FINE ARTS

Kevin Grigsby labors over a composition in a Hill Hall practice room. Middle Left: Students in an acting class gather outside the theater. Faculty and students come and go, but Joe, relaxing on a lobby couch, is the Art Buildings most reliable resident. Dr. Casey demonstrates the finer points of theatrical swordplay in front of Yeilding Chapel.

THE CHALLENGE

THE CHALLENGE is a musical retelling of the Greek myth of Daedalus, builder of the Labyrinth. Daedalus falls in love with the queen, and the goddess of love answers his pleas by causing the queen to birth the Minotaur--half-human, half-bull. The king imprisons the Minotaur, the queen, and Daedalus and his son in the maze. When the Minotaur is killed, Daedalus and his son must escape.....this performance was the United States Premiere for the musical

THE CRUCIBLE is Arthur Miller's classic play about the era of the Salem witch trials. Intolerance, envy, greed and suspicion turn a Puritan town into a battleground of fear and paranoia as rumors of witchcraft build into the infamous trials of early American history. The passion and power of Miller's play make it a natural choice for the Spring Performance.

All Slides by Matt Mielke.

THE CRUCIBLE

'SOUTHERN PERFORMANCE

AS YOU LIKE IT is the quintessential Shakespeare comedy--light, bawdy, and true to human nature. The courtly Elizabethan society is too confining for Rosalind--so what's a girl to do but dress up as a man and escape to the woods? Confused identities, mistaken romance, and one quip after another all make this one of the Bard's most popular plays.

A play written by Alan Litsey, BSC professor, and directed by Michael Flowers, starred some of the best in the theatre and was part of the continuing Underground Series at the BSC theatre.

GIFTS

The Spring Dance Performance featured parts of "Coppelia", "Le Corsaire" and "Waltz". There were also modern works by adjunct Lee Jane Ho, and some of a jazz piece by Sloane Stephens. Five-time silver medalist at the international ballet competition, Anatoli Kucheruk, did some featured performances.

DANCE

MISS BSC

Miss Lanette Stroup from Tuscaloosa, Al. is Miss Birmingham Southern College 1995. Stoup represented BSC in the Miss Alabama Pageant. Lanette sang "How Could I Ever Know" from the Secret Garden for the Talent competition to receive a scholarship for her technical skill, preparedness, stage presence, and interpretive skill. Previously, Miss BSC was Miss Marshall County and Miss Tuscaloosa. It is of course an honor to have her as our Miss BSC!

In December, the Choirs of BSC held their annual Christmas Concert at Canterbury United Methodist Church. A school tradition for over fifty years, this event brings together the Concert Choir, Southern Chorale, and the Alumni Choir.

'SOUTHERN CHRISTMAS

With Choirs at each end of the sanctuary, Dr. Cook's skill at the pipe organ, and the great leadership of Hugh Thomas, David Smith, and Lester Siegel, the concert is a stirring part of the Birmingham holiday season. It has been seen by generations, broadcast on radio, and even recorded for compact disk. This year's version was another command performance by the students and alumni of BSC.

'SOUTHERN BAND

When you wander into a Panther basketball game on campus during the Christmas break, and the only sounds are the tick of the clock and the squeak of sneakers, you realize just what a difference the Pep Band makes. Stylish in gold and black, the Finest Pep Band in the South (some would say World) keeps the faithful Panthers rocking and rolling from warmups to the final buzzer. This year, the band went all the way to Tulsa, getting their long-awaited air time on ESPN as they cheered the Panthers to the national championship.

Brian Mathews is tooting his horn.

'SOUTHERN ART

Whether it's Dr. Shelton's paintings in the library, Joey Williams' giant punctuation mark by the Quad, Catherine Brown's pills, or Andrea Lowrey's clown, the art of BSC surrounds us. We dabble in design, or photography, or even just take Art History and scratch Joe behind the ears, and find our fellow students' work in the gallery--not to mention the local coffeeshouses.

The purpose of the GALA celebration is to honor women who have contributed a great deal to a great variety of causes as well as to raise funding for the Birmingham-Southern College Fine and Performing Arts Program.

The honorees for GALA 12 were some of the most influential and important women in America. The co-chairs for GALA 12 were previously honored women who came back to help with the event, Nancy Goodman Brinker and Ann McLaughlin.

Barbara Taylor Bradford is an author whose books are guaranteed best-sellers. Her first novel, A Woman of Substance, was on the New York Times hard cover best-seller list for three months, and on the paperback list for almost a year. Her subsequent novels, Voice of the Heart, Hold the Dream, Act of Will, To Be The Best, The Women In His Life, Remember, and Angel, have sold more than 48 million copies in 85 countries and have been translated into 34 languages.

Lynda Carter whose face is recognized around the world, is an award winning actress, singer, spokeswoman, and philanthropist. A native of Phoenix, a three year stint with a nightclub band, was followed by a Miss World USA title, and a move to Los Angeles to pursue an acting career. She landed the starring role in "Wonder Woman" in 1976. She has since starred in many television movies, features, and shows. She received the Jill Ireland Award for Volunteerism for the Susan G. Komer Breast Cancer Foundation.

Frances Hesselbein is President and CEO of the Peter F. Drucker Foundation for Nonprofit Management and Chairwoman of the Board of Governors of the Josephson Institute for the Advancement of Ethics, also served as CEO of the Girls Scouts of the U.S.A. for 14 years. She holds eight honorary degrees, is a member of 16 boards and has been featured on the cover of both Business Week and Savvy as well as being interviewed by the New York Times.

Kay Bailey Hutchinson became the first woman from Texas to be elected to the United States Senate, claiming more than two-thirds of the vote in a special election runoff in 1993. The Republican junior member of the U. S. Senate serves on the Armed Services, Commerce, Science and Transportation, and Small Business committees. A graduate of The University of Texas at Austin and the University of Texas School of Law, Hutchinson was named outstanding UT alumna in 1991 and serves as a trustee of the UT School of Law Foundation.

Gwen Ifill is a national correspondent for NBC News, based in the Washington bureau. A native of New York City, she is a graduate of Simmons College in Boston, where she was awarded an honorary doctorate in journalism in 1993. Prior to joining NBC, she worked as a White House correspondent for the New York Times, where she also covered Congress and the 1992 Clinton campaign. In addition to her correspondent role on NBC News, Ifill frequents "Meet the Press" and "Washington Week In Review."

Leontine T. C. Kelly is a graduate of the Virginia Union University, and had a full career as a high school social studies teacher before returning to school at Wesley Theological Seminary and Union Theological Seminary. As an ordained United Methodist elder, Kelly served local churches in Virginia and as Associate Program Council Director of the Virginia Annual Conference. In 1984 she was elected to the episcopacy--making her the first African-American woman and second woman to be elected bishop of any major denomination.

Ida Kohlmeyer is an artist whose work spans almost four decades and four continents. The New Orleans native studied English Literature in her youth, then, 23 years later, received a master of fine arts degree from Tulane University's Newcomb Art School, a school where she would later teach for 11 years. Her paintings, sculptures, and installations have been exhibited in galleries from New York City to Colombia, South America; from Birmingham to Nairobi, Kenya in both solo and group shows.

Bette Bao Lord award-winning author and lecturer, sailed to America from her native Shanghai at the age of eight. As an adult she returned as the wife of the American Ambassador. Her books have received critical acclaim. Legacies, A Chinese Mosaic, was a New York Times best-seller and was named one of TIME magazine's ten best nonfiction books in 1990. Lord served as a CBS News consultant in 1989 and helped interpret the events in Tiananmen Square. She has made numerous other television appearances as an expert on life in modern China.

Phyllis Newman is an entertainment icon, having performed on Broadway, radio, television, film and the concert stage. Her Tony award-winning performance in "Subways are for Sleeping," was just one role with show lyricist Adolph Green, who is also her husband. Concert and cabaret appearances across the country are the highlights of Newman's career and her account of triumph over breast cancer, Just In Time: Notes From My Life was published by Simon & Schuster.

Antonio Novello, M.D., is the first woman and the first Hispanic to hold the position of surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service. A native of Puerto Rico, she received both undergraduate and doctorate degrees from the University of Puerto Rico, before serving a pediatric internship at the University of Michigan. Currently, Dr. Novello is a Special Representative for Health and Nutrition for the United Nations Children's Fund, providing leadership toward global efforts to eliminate iodine and vitamin A deficient disorders, immunizing the world's children, and preventing smoking and substance abuse in young people.

Elisabeth Kubler-Ross is an internationally recognized social scientist in the field of death, dying, and transition and has made ground-breaking contributions towards greater understanding of these life experiences. Her books, papers, lectures, workshops, and seminars are considered to have produced benchmark statements on the topics. A founding member of the American Holistic Medical Association, Dr. Ross is also a member of the American Psychiatric Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the Society of Swiss Physicians.

Helen Thomas, White House Press correspondent, has always been the first woman to do so. After 90 years of all-male memberships, she was named the first woman member of the Grady Club and was president in 1993—and was the first woman to be elected president of the Press Club. Thomas' career began in 1960, with President Kennedy, and her reputation of having traveled around the world for presidents, Nixon, Ford, Carter, Regan, and Bush during the course of which she covered every economic summit. She was not able to attend the ceremonies because she was in Russia with Bill Clinton.

Heather Whitestone capture the attention and admiration of her home state Alabama and the nation last September when she became the first woman with a disability to be named Miss America. Profoundly deaf, Whitestone realized her goal by winning the annual scholarship pageant in Atlantic City. STARS, Success Through Action and Realization of Yours Dreams, is a self-esteem program Whitestone created to tell young people that anything is possible in life. Whitestone, who travels 20,000 miles a month, has become one of the most popular and widely-covered Miss Americas.

WORKING AS A TEAM

Marie Shunnarah appears to really need some coffee. It's a good thing the SGA, under the influence of Brooke Tanner, got the coffee house started in time. Or maybe Marie is just contemplating the duties of the RHA presidency.

Functioning within an organization at 'Southern is the best possible way to meet people with the same interests as yourself, but it is also a way to meet another side of yourself. Whether it is through volunteer service, programming on campus, working with special interests, or exploring a talent, organizations on campus allow a total indulgence in self discovery. College is one of the few periods in life when we can so rawly search our souls--so search on!

SPORTS... 'SOUTHERN

Sports seem to have a higher level of excitement and enthusiasm. The excitement for the basketball, baseball, tennis, and soccer teams is well understood. Fans show their support in more ways than one.

'Southern boasts no football team nor do we send our swimmer's to the Olympics-- we do park cars for a nice football team and will soon house some Olympians. However, we are no overlooked. Our basketball, baseball, tennis, and soccer teams are known nationally for their excellence as scholar-athletes. Sports, like all facets of the college, is another part of our liberal arts education that we take in stride, but not for granted.

EXCELLENCE PERSISTS

MAKING A RACKET

Under the direction of Head Coach Ann Dielan, the BSC tennis program has consistently been among the nation's premier NAIA college teams. She has led the women to the NAIA national tournament since the tournament's inception in 1980. BSC is the only team in the country which can boast that record. The men have been to the event 13 of the last 18 seasons. With an impressive season, the BSC women's team finished 1994 ranked 12th in the nation, led by junior Erin Hambrick's finish of number 31 in the nation. The team represented the college in the NAIA National Tournament for the 16th consecutive season which is how long the woman's tournament has been in existence. The team starts 1995 ranked 9th in the nation with seven returning players. The BSC men's tennis team is coming off a 10-11 season and a national ranking of 12th in the country. This season a young team was put to the test as they were ranked 16th pre-season.

Brian Cardinal delivers a powerful backhand stroke to an opponent.

Ashley Duke executes perfect form while clobbering a fellow team member in practice.

The members of the BSC tennis team: (FR) Sissy McClung, Clancy Johnson, Elizabeth Donald. (MR) Erin Hambrick, Kelly Weir, Elizabeth Foster, Julie Meeker, Ashley Duke, Jennifer Neal, Kristin Flowers. (BR) Brian Cardinal, Jim Corder, Jason Thompson, Curt Williams, Coach Ann Dielan, Jeremy Taylor, John Bishop, and Jason Mitchell.

Jeremy Taylor's backhand fires a return across the net with ease.

Jason Thompson's look of determination is matched by his skilled forehand. He probably still asks his fellow players for advice even though he appears to have matters well in hand. And who better to ask for advice than the captains of the team? John Bishop practices his lobs close to the net while Erin Hambrick is just warming up for practice. Both captains demonstrate the skill and grace that have made the BSC team a success.

NOT QUITE THE PROS

Intramural sports are for many a great way to keep in shape, have fun, and spend time with friends. For most, however, it is hard core competition to determine who is the best. Okay, okay, maybe the former applies to more than the latter, but someone better tell Sigma Alpha Epsilon before they pound everyone again next year. In individual competitions, students compete in a variety of different events. The champions were John Bishop for table tennis, Brian Patz for racquetball singles, Norman Atkins for 8-Ball, Chad Bradford for 9-Ball, and Chad Bradford for Free throw shooting. In the team competitions, there were fierce battles and many injuries, but everyone still had fun. The champions were Theta Chi, Chi Omega, and Miracle 7 for Flag Football, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Alpha Omicron Pi for Volleyball, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Alpha Omicron Pi, and the Great Cornholios for Indoor Soccer, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, the Soccer team, and Indy for Basketball, Alpha Chi Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon for Softball, Death from Below for 4-on-4 Sand pit Volleyball, and the Who for 3-on-3 Basketball. Sportsman and Sportswoman of the Year were Hank Hilliard and Lia Pate. The All Sports Champions, surprisingly enough, were Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Chi Omega, and Alpha Omicron Pi. Brian Patz was greatly honored with the William Raines Battle Award for outstanding scholarship and athletics.

KICKING GRASS

Mike Bryson plays harder than his opponents, the edge that allows the Panthers to succeed.

Ryan Ferris entangles with an opponent, hoping to outrun him and pass the ball to the goal.

Gene Gill prepares to send the ball to the opposite side of the field.

Mark Lynn assesses the field to determine where to go next.

The BSC Panthers Soccer team is a study in skill, determination and perfection.

NOISE MAKERS

What is a sporting event without cheerleaders to egg us on, to move us to applause, to pump up the spirit, to make some noise? The BSC cheerleading squad worked hard to motivate fans at home and on the road. Exciting cheers, impressive routines, and amazing gymnastics are only a small part of the cheerleaders finesse. And then there is Rowdy, always prepared to duke it out with the other opponents mascot or maybe a referee that is just not making the right calls. The cheerleading squad, under the direction of Mike Robinson, proved once again that a game is not a game without the constant voices of our cheerleaders.

The 1994-95 Cheerleaders

are Laura Pounders,
Brett Littleton, Trish
House, Heather Rakes,
Kimbellee Brown, Sara
Jones, Holly Garrison,
Lanette Stroup, Melissa

ON THE COURT, ON THE MOVE...

The BSC Panther Basketball team and a few of their glorious moments from their national championship season.

The 1994-95 BSC Panthers:

(FR) Coach Dwayne Reboul, Eddie Walter, Mike Schwallie, Paul Fleming, Tommy Dalley, Chris Armstrong, Will Worrell, Coach Paul Arthur. (BR) Kenny Eaton, Nigel Coates, Jay Mitchell, Tom Runnion, Damon Wilcox., Obra Carter, Dwayne Elliot, Bo Coln, and Todd Lagen.

The road to victory is paved with determination, ambition, talent, and dreams. The Birmingham-Southern Basketball Program, the coaches, staff, and players, drove that road. When they got to the end, they were at the top. After intense practice, careful preparation, and solid team building, the BSC Panthers stormed through their season, defeating 35 of 37 opponents with a 32 game winning streak--the nation's longest. The Panthers met teams new and old on the court, said hello, dazzled them for 40 minutes, then said goodbye--regardless of the score, they all left amazed. James Cason lead the team as the highest scorer in 23 games. Seniors Tommy Dalley, Chris Armstrong, Paul Fleming chose to humiliate their opponents in nearly every game by launching scores of three pointers, matched only by a Cason slam in crowd response. But the team was not a few very talented individuals; the team was 15 talented individuals. Nobody has forgotten the final shot "Alle-oop" to Obra Carter that sent the fans into insane applause or the incredible consistent rebounds from the amazing Nigel Coates. They came, they saw, they left with a big ole trophy. And people complained about Zach--what would we have done without him?

..... ENOUGH SAID!

THE SPOILS OF VICTORY

The BSC Panther, the NAIA National Champion in Basketball for 1997, returned home from a grueling battle to be greeted by loving fans, relatives, the press, the Mayor, and a plethora of others at the Birmingham airport. Their home campus had been turned into a colorful display of toilet paper as the students rolled the residence hall quad to celebrate the victorious panthers. The players were honored by a parade through downtown Birmingham. There, they were recognized by several organizations for their wonderful contributions to the city and to the college. Dr. Berte was on hand to utter praise not only for the success of the Basketball team, but also to expound on the successes of the scholar-athlete program at Birmingham-Southern College. There was also a really neat seafood thing at Sloss Furnace for them. After all was said and done, the Panthers settled in to watch the baseball team keep up the pace.

STARS IN OUR EYES

Half-time entertainment at sporting events can not be overlooked at Birmingham Southern because our half-time show is the coolest and most dazzling around. The Southern Stars provided the best in entertainment as they performed exciting dance routines to today's funkier dance beats. Their homecoming performance was a real show stopper while the rest of their performances kept us cheering. The Southern Stars are advised by Marianne Fitzpatrick and are Julie Hodge, Laura Payne, Allison Burrow, Candice Dodson, Alice Edwards, Marlee Harrison, Jeanie Vlack, Becky Hill, Lisa Lancaster, and Neala Lane.

The 1995 Diamond Girls helped with the baseball program tremendously both on the field at games and off the field at events such as the Baseball Banquet. Butch Thompson, their advisor, also worked hard to coordinate their activities.

Robin Burks pauses a moment during her duties on the field to rest and speak with fellow Diamond Girl, Sarah Gracey, who is off today.

TOP RIGHT: Diamond Girls not only snag bats for the Panthers but also for their opponents. How kind of us to share! Most of the teams did not seem to appreciate it after the Panthers trounced them.

MIDDLE RIGHT: Rebecca Hallmark fills drinks, makes hot dogs, and checks Bingo cards during an inning change.

BOTTOM RIGHT: Katy Patrick, Diamond Girl extraordinaire, and Ryan Hayes seem to be more anxious to start the inning than the down trodden opponents.

DIAMOND GIRLS SPARKLE

While most of us attend the Birmingham-Southern baseball games with one purpose, to see the Panthers destroy their opponents, the BSC Diamond Girls have many reasons to attend: they get to wear really cool t-shirts and warm up suits, they get to run around on the field with all the players, they get free bubble gum, and, oh yeah, they have to work. Whether it be the chipping contest in the 6th inning, concessions throughout the game, awarding the winners of BSC Baseball Bingo, selling tickets, or snagging bats, the BSC Diamond Girls work diligently to insure that the little things get done. The 1994-95 Diamond Girls are Carrie Alexander, Kim Bell, Jill Brown, Kimbellee Brown, Robin Burks, Keri Ehniger, Sarah Gracey, Toni Griffin, Rebecca Hallmark, Becky Hill, Synessa Jefferson, Sara Jones, Sandy Lepp, Katy Patrick, Michelle Phillips, Heather Rakes, Stacey Robertson, Marie Shunnarah, Martha Slay, Whitney Teaver, Kim Webster, Allison Willbourne, and Elyzabeth Wills.

PANTHERS AT THE PLATE

Gary "G" Dutton takes a first strike as he prepares to launch a rocket over the second baseman of a soon to be defeated opponent.

Landon "Bomb Pop" McClain, one of BSC newest and youngest pitchers hurls a strike to an opponents batter.

Marc "Mattie" Mattasits scores yet again .

Andy "Andy" Ford signals the pitcher and awaits another strike to retire a helpless batter.

The Birmingham-Southern Panthers, eager to shine as brightly as their basketball counterparts, dominated their opponents at the plate. With a .304 batting average total for the season over their opponents .231, it is no wonder that the Panthers 41-16 record earned them a spot in the World Series in Sioux City, Iowa. But baseball is a two part game. The pitching staff did more than their share to keep opponents scoring to a minimum with a earned run average of only 3.53 compared to their opponents 7.03. The panthers scored nearly twice as many points total as their opponents, aided by their 79.5% average of stolen bases.

PEOPLE BEHIND THE PLAYERS

The baseball program is led by some outstanding individuals. The coaches, staff, and athletic assistants work hard each game to guide the players through the battle, assist them with injuries and problems, and catalogue their winning season. Cassidy Dowdy and Lanette Stroup, the unofficial Queens of the Fans, attended almost every game to see the Panthers to victory and egg other fans on. Butch Thompson did an incredible job working with the outfield, Greg Martin, Chris Dorsey, Jake Scaffidi, and Stewart Murphy, the season's standouts. Daron Shoenrock guides those incredible pitchers with the talent that can only come from experience and hard work. Brian Shoop...hey, what else to we have to say!

TAKE ME OUT TO THE BALL GAME

The BSC Panthers brought tons of fans to Striplin field to watch their amazing season. Faculty, such as Dr. Craig Lagrone, his wife, and their son, came out on occasion to watch the Panthers and participate in the activities. The Baseball team was chosen as the Fans of the Year for the Basketball team, so, to return the favor, Coach Reboul was often seen at games along with the Berte's, the basketball team themselves, and, of course, Zach. Sarah Gracey, Cassie Doggett, Jan Montgomery, Katie Webster, and Tracey Brookings all have their reasons for attending the games: to watch their sweethearts play, to act as a diamond girl, to study, or just to win a hot dog. Doc Sloan and Joe, as consistent as the baseball team themselves attended games. Joe seems to be giving the press box a hard look because they have not posted the latest out. For fans who arrived at the game early enough, some pregame fun was seen. The Panthers had a banner year and the fans seemed to be happy, excited, and thrilled at every game that constructed the winning season.

MUG SHOTS: HEY!

What better way to spend your time during a snow storm than making snow balls and putting them down peoples shirts...or maybe just touching necks with icy hands.

Ah, now we see why we really hate early morning registration. But, they are just photos. The real story here is the people. What a great bunch of guys and gals we have on the Hilltop! What? That was a sexist remark? Huh? You think I am acting out a post-modern male structured agenda? Oh, brother, I mean, sister, I mean...Oh, heck. No doubt I am on the Hilltop now. But really folks, the people and faces make 'Southern one of the nicests places...usually.

AREN'T WE CUTE!

SENIORS: HEAD OF THE CLASS!

Ever notice a little anxiety in a senior? Anxiety tainted with a little bit of sadness? Ever wonder from where it originates? Let us consider...You have been in college for 4 long years..you are taking your last major classes and some really easy general education requirements--although I do not know what those would be--you dream of black satiny robes...you hear "Pomp and Circumstance" in your ears...then, you realize, "Have I learned anything?" Now, wouldn't you be nervous? Is it Rally burger or Medical School, the job market or graduate school, teaching or law school, living off Mom and Dad or selling the Lexus?...yes folks, its decision time and this one really counts.

JUNIORS: ALPHABET SOUP

LSAT, MCAT, PSAT, DAT, GRE, GMAT, that's that, right? What the heck is up with that? As everyone knows, the junior year is the best time to take those dreaded standardized tests to determine where we go next in life. There are so many letters floating around, one can be overconfident if not focused. 'Southern juniors are very focused. Although they will probably only take one of these tests, they know what they all mean: more education or the workforce? We worry all as one, how each other did, what the national average will be, who will score the highest, will it be a good year to apply, can those graduate schools fund me, will the government give you that loan? All the worrying will soon cease and then will be launched into the real world--where the alphabet soup only gets thicker--IRS, EPA, FCC, CEO, MD, PhD, BIA, FBI, CIA, USMC, OU812!

SOPHOMORES: KISSING EVERYTHING

After a really trying first year on the Hilltop, 'Southern Sophomores find themselves slaves to the grind. After that first year with the really nice English professor they decide to maybe take another course in the field, only to discover how really heavy literature can burden your mind. Not only do studies pile upon them, but they are also asked to join one of many groups to serve as perhaps a liaison for the college or to just haul the new student luggage around. It is true--there are quirks to all these duties, but it is hard to remember them with tons of stuff in your arms. Or maybe students chose to be bold and run for an office in one of the fifty organization they joined as new student. Whatever the case, they close their eyes and pucker--there is only one way to get ahead in our little microcasm of the universe and it ain't milk and cookies for everybody!

CLASS OF '98: READY FOR THE GAME

New students are just full of crazy ideas...Just ask them! They think all kinds of silly things like they are supposed to get all the classes they want when they want them, they are supposed to have a private room with private shower, their laundry will do itself, the food in the cafeteria is really nutritionally balanced, they will never grow tired of pizza and chicken, and most disturbing of all, they feel that they do not have to really go to class. It only takes a semester or six to wake up these troubled youth to the true nature of college: Life is tough and a private liberal arts college is no exception.

Greek organizations serve many purposes at 'Southern. They provide a complete social network within which new students and old function. They gather person power to make philanthropic events more successful and productive. They serve to link the students and the college more closely. And, most importantly, they form friendships not only meant to last forever, but also created through loyalty, honor, and trust in an environment that is not always so.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Founded at Birmingham -Southern April 9, 1926, Alpha Omega Chapter of Alpha Chi Omega has worked hard to be a contributing group to the campus and the surrounding community. Each Alpha Chi sister strives for sincerity, unselfishness, and honesty in all academic, social, and personal endeavors. The Alpha Omega sisters participate in a variety of school wide activities offering support to the diverse campus community at BSC. Rush produced an enthusiastic new member class, kicking off the new year with renewed energy and excitement. Alpha Chi Omega members, both new and old, rolled up their sleeves to join in full force with the Homecoming festivities and Derby Day Competitions. Casino, Alpha Chis annual philanthropy event entertained participants while raising money to benefit victims of domestic violence. During the spring the Alpha Omega Chapter was selected by their nationals to participate in an experimental and informative awareness program. The year wound down with the annual Senior Banquet and a tearful farewell.

The Alpha Chi Omega new members enjoy their first Fall Party.

The 1992 Alpha Omega pledge class are enjoying a few minutes of bonding while anticipatingly awaiting the delivery of the Bid List.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA

The Nu Delta Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. was founded on the campus of Birmingham-Southern December 1, 1979 by thirteen illustrious young women. Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. is here to “serve all mankind.” The Nu Delta Chapter, being an undergraduate chapter, is focused mainly on service to BSC and the community. Members can be found active in such campus activities as the Panhellenic Committee and the Education Advancement Foundation. While on a broader scale, AKA’s can be found feeding the homeless, hostessing area talent for “Pink Fantasia,” visiting the elderly at Senior Citizens Home, and participating in adopting Children’s Christmas Village to help homeless youth. AKA members are encouraged to maintain active involvement in school and community service, but are also active in the classroom. AKA has been recognized for scholastic achievement by BSC for the past two years for attaining the Highest Scholastic Average of all the sororities on campus.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

Tau Delta Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi celebrated its 70th year at Birmingham-Southern in 1995. Once again, AOII raised money for arthritis research with Stick-Up for Arthritis in the Fall and with Mr. Hilltopper in the spring. AOII achieved the highest overall sorority GPA for fall 1994, but members were outstanding out of class as well. AOIIs were active in clubs and honoraries and were sure to be found in service and leadership positions with campus groups such as SVS, RHA, and the SGA. AOIIs also committed their time to Residence Life, campus publications, and other organizations. Sisterhood retreat was a highlight of the fall. Throughout the year, Tau Deltas continued working together, placing second in both football and basketball intramurals as well as capturing first place in soccer and volleyball. AOII is looking forward to future years of philanthropy, scholarship, leadership, and sisterhood at BSC.

CHI OMEGA

Chi Omega fraternity, founded on April 5, 1895 at the University of Arkansas, celebrated 100 years of sisterhood in 1995. With 174 active chapters and having initiated over 215,000 women since its founding, Chi Omega shines as the largest national women's fraternity. The Omicron Lambda chapter, established in 1988, is one of the youngest chapters at Birmingham-Southern, but has quickly established itself in campus life and has cultivated the spirit of excellence and sisterhood personified by her original founders. Sisters of Omicron Lambda are involved in organizations ranging from student government and judiciary to student publications, fine arts to athletics, biology to business, and academic honoraries to service organizations. Omicron Lambda took first place in intramural football competition, won first place in the skit competition at Alpha Omicron Pi's Mr. Hilltopper, as well as won first place overall in Sigma Chi's Derby Days competition.

KAPPA DELTA

The Alpha Upsilon Chapter of Kappa Delta celebrated its 65th year at BSC in 1995. In these 65 years KD has been active on campus and in the community, promoting bonds of true friendship among its sisters. Our exciting year started off with pledging and initiating 21 new sisters! There were many activities to keep us busy all fall long. One of the most important was our annual KomedY Klub that helps raise money for the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse and the Exchange Club in Birmingham. As usual, everyone had a great time watching comedians from each fraternity and sorority on campus perform, as well as some independents. In the spring KDs participated in Greek Week, Homecoming, Outreach Day, The Great American Smoke-Out, and welcoming our winning basketball team home from nationals. We also hosted our Shamrock Project which contributes money again to our national philanthropy. KDs can be found all over campus and in the community in such organizations as PSSO, Triangle Club, Children's Hospital volunteers, SVS, Quest II, and many more. We have had a terrific 65 years and look forward to 65 more.

New KD pledges get together with the active members at the annual Bid Day picnic.

PI BETA PHI

The Alabama Alpha Chapter of Pi Beta Phi had another exciting and busy year in 1995. Pi Phi was founded at Monmouth College in 1867 and was the first fraternity for women. Originally founded in 1927, the chapter at Birmingham-Southern is strong in friendship and sisterhood. In late September the entire chapter traveled to Gatlinburg, Tennessee for a sisterhood retreat at Arrowmont, an arts and crafts school and Pi Phi's national philanthropy. Pi Phi is unique in that it is the only Greek organization to own its own philanthropy. Our studies are one of our top priorities, and as a result we received the award for the most improved GPA among the Greek organizations for women. Community service is also important, so we participated as a group in the fall Outreach Day, helping to clean Bayview Lake. Pi Phi's stay active and can be found all over campus in the theatre, as Resident Advisors, on the newspaper staff, in the cafeteria, in the dance department and with Southern Volunteer Services.

It's girls night out as the Pi Phis hit Aspen Skating Arena for some ice cold bliss.

Sisters of Zeta get together to plan their second annual Hoop Fest.

Crush 1994 finds these Zeta Tau Alphas happy to be surrounded by so many cute party dates.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Founded in 1922, the Alpha Nu chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha was the first sorority established at Birmingham-Southern College and is one of the 221 chapters across the nation making Zeta the third largest women's fraternity. ZTA kicked off the 1994-1995 year off with participation in the third annual Race For the Cure with proceeds benefiting their national philanthropy, the Susan G. Komer Breast Cancer Foundation. ZTA also hosted their second annual Hoopfest at BSC as well as a successful clothers drive for Grace House. ZTA continued to be weel represented on campus with members involved in PSSO, cheerleading, Miss BSC, Student Judiciary, Concert Choir, SOS, Quest II, Homecoming Court, Housing Staff, as well as group membership in numerous honor societies. In addition, the ladies of ZTA had a great time at their Fall Crush Party, Crown Ball in December, and White Violet formal in the spring. The many social and philanthropic activities continued to strengthen the exceptional sisterhood of Zeta Tau Alpha.

ZTA sisters get a chance to bond at the annual Crown Ball Formal.

ATO Alums enjoy Viking 1995 almost as much as current members.

ATOs have the most unique ways of bonding at BSC. Whether it be a friendly hug, or some playful torture, the ATOs always have fun.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

The Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity was founded in 1865 at Virginia Military Institute. Twenty years later the Beta Beta Chapter was founded at Birmingham-Southern College. The brothers of the Beta Beta Chapter take pride in their juxtaposition of diversity and unity. Although individuality is inherent, the brothers share one common bond--friendship. Alpha Tau Omega feels a strong commitment to academics as well as community involvement. Members are involved in Triangle Club, Quest II, SGA, Housing Staff, Appalaichan Service Project, Phi Beta Kappa, BSC Tennis, after school tutoring programs, Jazz Band, and even the National Guard. The brothers understand that college is not just a time to enjoy but to prepare for life after BSC. The social aspect of a fraternity is also quite important and the Beta Betas certainly do not neglect this essential aspect. Sorority mixers, Pledge Dance, Viking, Christmas Party, FunkFest, and Luau are key ingredients in the social life of an ATO, however, some of the best times are spent simply hanging out. Our goal is not to just have a group to sit in the cafe with for four years, but to become true friends for life.

KAPPA ALPHA ORDER

Kappa Alpha Order was a way of life significant to the development of young men emulating chivalric ideals and genteel ethics, KA translated these timeless philosophies to the mainstream of American Colleges and Universities. These traits were the hallmark for men who choose this unique lifestyle. Although Robert E. Lee was never a member of the Order, he exemplified the highly distinguished qualities of honor, chivalry, and gentility. It is because of these strong and unique characteristics that Lee served as the inspiration and “Spiritual Founder” for the Order. The Kappa Alphas of Phi Chapter were very involved on the campus of Birmingham-Southern as well as in the Birmingham community. The KAs were very supportive of their national philanthropy, The Muscular Dystrophy Association, and they regularly volunteered at the Birmingham Firehouse Men’s Shelter. KA was highly competitive in BSC intramural sports as well as special events such as Highlander, Convivium, Old South Week, and others. Phi Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order continued to strive to emulate the lofty ideals of their founders while remaining a strong, positive influence on the campus of Birmingham-Southern.

KAs and their antebellum dates enjoy their annual Old South Party southern style.

The Kappa Alpha Order-Kappa Delta Mixer "Decade of the Dead" found these tie-dyed KAs happy to be members of the Order.

Old South seems to be a mixture of styles new and old, as these KAs don their Ray Bans along with their Civil War attire.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded on March 9, 1856 at the University of Alabama and has remained one of the nation's respected fraternities. The Alabama Iota Chapter was established at Birmingham-Southern College on November 23, 1878. Founded on the basis of intellectual and Christian ideas, the fraternity always inspired its members to strive for wisdom, growth, and maturity. Through its motto, The True Gentleman, the fraternity enlarged the virtues of good will, justice, and honor. In its scholastic and athletic achievements, SAE maintained a level of excellence which gained it many honors and awards, including Intramural Champion. The chapter's high level of commitment to community service greatly benefited such organizations as the Children's Hospital. SAE's campus involvement was seen in honoraries such as Phi Beta Kappa, Mortar Board, and ODK; and, also in organizations such as the SGA, Student Judiciary, Glee Club, RHA, PSSO, and Triangle Club. Socially, SAEs had many parties during the year such as KMAO, mixers with all sororities, Black Warrior, and Spring Formal. Through their friendships and dedication to the chapter, the brothers of Alabama Iota continue to maintain and improve the high standards synonymous with SAE and to contribute fine, young leaders to society.

SIGMA CHI

Sigma Chi Fraternity, founded in 1855 has over 225 active chapters and more than 200,000 brothers throughout the world. Installed March 6, 1993, the Chi Chi Chapter has twice received the Fraternity's highest national achievement, The Peterson Significant Chapter Award, as well as one of only 14 Legion of Honor Awards for academic excellence. The Brothers of Sigma Chi have raised more than $6000 in the past two years benefitting the Children's Miracle Network through Derby Days, our major philanthropic event. Sigma Chi continues to work in the Birmingham area for such charitable organizations as Baby's Place, the area Firehouse Shelter, and Epic School. As the first and only Greek organization ever bestowed "Organization of the Year" by the faculty and staff at Birmingham-Southern, the brothers remain actively involved in Residence Life, The Hilltop News, theatre, Triangle Club, P.S.S.O., Hilltop Singers, Student Judiciary, theater, S.G.A, the Soccer and Tennis teams, as well as many other extracurricular activities.

Sigma Nu was founded at Virginia Military Institute in 1869. Its founders envisioned an organization dedicated to the three ideals of Love, Truth, and Honor. Today, Lamda Theta Chapter at BSC still strives to attain these ideals. The Lambda Theta Chapter was founded in 1987. Since then it has grown to become one of the strongest Sigma Nu chapters in the country, having been awarded the Rock Chapter Award, the highest award given by Sigma Nu Nationals. Sigma Nus show their commitment to their school by participating in many campus activities which include SGA, Student Judiciary, Triangle Club, Housing Staff, RHA, SAS, Quest II, and the baseball team. Along with campus involvement, Sigma Nu takes great pride in their philanthropy. The largest project undertaken annually by the brothers is "Jail-n-Bail," which benefits the American Cancer Society. The brothers have also participated in workdays for the United Cerebral Palsy and BEAT (Bethel-Ensley Housing) along with numerous other projects. In the past year the fraternity has accumulated over 500 hours of philanthropy time. The brothers of Lamda Theta chapter of Sigma Nu are a diverse group of young men who constantly strive for excellence in all aspects of college life.

THETA CHI

Birmingham-Southern's Beta Xi chapter of Theta Chi reached new heights during the '94-'95 school year. Beta Xi began the year by receiving 9 of 12 Chapter Achievement Awards given by Theta Chi Nationals at the annual summer National Conference. The awards for Excellence in Rush, Chapter Achievement, Philanthropy, Scholarship, and Alumni Relations were a source of pride for the chapter. In the fall, the fraternity pledged a group of well-rounded young men. With the momentum of a quality Rush, Theta Chi displayed a great amount of campus and community leadership and involvement throughout the year. The brothers of Theta Chi have been hard at work in the Birmingham area. The brothers have volunteered their time to participate in various worthwhile projects such as the YWCA tutoring program, assistant coaching for various athletic programs at a local high school, and serving hot meals to the homeless at the Men's Shelter. The brothers of Theta Chi, while busy serving both the school and the community, also found time to hold unprecedented social events throughout the year. Pledge Dance, Octoberfest, Winter Party, Disco Hell, Stampede, and Beach Formal were all great successes. During '94-'95, Theta Chi displayed traditional excellence on campus through leadership, intramural athletics, and academics. Theta Chi served as a model for both the BSC campus and the community.

NEVER SELLING

The Hilltop had many new additions in the food service department with expanded menus in the cafe, more choices in Chic-fil-a and Pizza Hut, and, of course, the coffee house. How can they do this? Simple, no advertising costs.

The production of the yearbook is primarily paid for by the student activity fee, but there were many fine businesses and parents who supported us in addition to these monies. We would like to sincerely thank them for their assistance and hope that they will continue to support Birmingham-Southern as we continue to support them.

From the Editor:

A great deal of time and effort was spent putting this book together for the wonderful students of Birmingham-Southern College. We had many problems--so many that you would probably have not had a year book if I had not really needed the money. Sometimes, the money wasn't worth it. In the end, however, I felt that the BSC students deserved a yearbook no matter how long I had to work, no matter how long my staff had to suffer, no matter how long we typed and retyped. We did it for you, the students of BSC. The theme this year was Absolutely 'Southern. Well, after the first page, we sort of threw the theme out the window, which is typical of a BSC student, so we thought it worked quite well. The cover features a special solarized photograph, which you can do at home with a flashlight. The endsheets feature the Harbert building, which vaguely look like Absolut bottles. The gold coloring is HJ #960 Gold...ain't it pretty. All decisions regarding the content of this book, the copy, photographs, and layouts are exclusively mine and I take full responsibility for their content. I have greatly enjoyed working on this book and hope that it will be enjoyed by you as well. I would like to extend special thanks to AXO, AKA, AOII, XO, KD, PBP, ZTA, ATO, KA, SAE, SN, SX, OX, SGA, RHA, Birmingham-Southern College, Sarah Hershberger, Chris Hershey, Travis McKee, Nicole Bates, David Miller, Finley Bullard, Kevin Parker, Sara Hoover, Carolyn Whisenhunt, Michele Bowen, Sandra Sprayberry, Caroline Hembree, Eric Hunt, The Flirtations, Jonathan Drewry, The residents of Hanson (153-161 only), The Hershey Corporation, Dr. Neal R. Berte and his lovely wife Anne, Snap -n- Back, Lisa Greene, Flash Photography, Martha Andrews, BSC Baseball team, BSC basketball team, Plaid, BSC soccer team, BSC tennis team, Linda--both of them--The City of Birmingham, Peggy Facklis, Sarah Parker, The Mayor, The President of The United States,

R.E.M., Yu-Shing Kao, Ellery Cook, Security, Toad the Wet Sprocket, Judy, Shakespeare's Sister, Guadal Canal Diary, The Police, Sony, The Hilltop News, Quad, Sarah Kepler, Southern Academic Review, Jeff Cook, Macintosh computers, IBM computers, Herff Jones, Internet, The BSC Print Shop, Mom and Dad, my sister, my brother-in-law, my grandmother, my other grandmother, my dog Ez, Club 21, Plato, Francis Bacon, Yule Brenner, Socrates, Wade Roberts, Immanuel Kant, Heigel, Levinas, Derrida, Brad Daly, The beautiful voices of the BSC music department, Matt Mielke, Greg Louganis, Michael Flowers, Eileen Moore, Chris Nicholls, Rushton Johnson, Leo Pezzementi, The BSC Chemistry Faculty, Joan of Arc, Gloria Steinem, Isabella Rossilini, Joan Crawford, Alex Trevek, Brad Pitt, Steven Spielberg, Thomas Keneally, Ray Bradberry, Judy Garland, The Fabulous Baker Boys, Kath Mayne, Val Kilmer, Cathy, Kathy Bates, Kathy McElroy, Katherine the Great, the sinners, the dogooders, and last but certainly not least, the other 8 billion people that I didn't thank. If you would like to see some other great publications, check out Baseball in America (a wonderful pictorial that makes a great gift), Out of the Studio, Molecular Biology of the Cell, Midnight (by Dean R. Koontz), any book by Dean R. Koontz, The Icarus Agenda, A Time To Kill (but do not read any of the others), The Bell Curve (for a good example of a horrible book), any of those books the GALA 12 Honorees wrote, any book by a BSC professor, Quad, Southern Academic Review, The Hilltop News, the New York Times, Life Magazine, The Village Voice, Crazy in Alabama, any Lewis Grizzard book, biographies of famous people, autobiographies of nobodies (these are rare!), The Chalice and the Blade (no matter what anybody else says, its chalice), Fried Green Tomatoes, any comic book that has been made into a horrible movie, all of Flannery's stuff, The Princess Bride, Dr. Suess' books (all of them), and of course, the back of any cereal box--who knows you may have won a million dollars!! I must retire now and move on to the next stage in my life--which involves dead cut up flesh and smells that linger for years--and you must move on to the next part of your life...whatever that may be, I hope it is what you want out of life, nothing more and nothing less. If our paths cross again, we will smile, remember, and pass on, warm with secure thoughts from our college days gone by...

Love you one and all,
Danny A. Milner, Jr.

LOCK ALL THE DOORS

Well, the end is near for the book, and it seems the end is near for David Miller as well. Tommy Bush was about to beat him earlier and he apparently succeeded. Didn't someone tell David those mats were hot?

As the long days of summer approached 'Southern, senioritis kicked in for most everyone. The desire to simply be away for the summer can be overwhelming for many, but for those who plan to brave summer school, it was sort of a depressing thought. As we prepared to depart for the next step in life, which for 75% of us is 'Southern, we looked back on the year and laughed and cried a final time before packing our car and heading for...somewhere.

TURN OUT THE LIGHTS

Chris Dorsey shows the proper way to get from first to home....steal like crazy! The Panthers came on strong in the first innings of all their games, crushing their opponents morale and chances of victory.

ON TO IOWA

While most of us prepared to battle our finals, the BSC Panther Baseball team found themselves battling other teams from the southeastern region of the country. After clinching our NAIA district, the Panthers traveled to Demopolis, Alabama to face teams from Florida, Georgia, and other southeastern states to decide who would go on to the NAIA World Series in Sioux City, Iowa. Several fans and families made the trek to the games to watch as our Panthers not surprisingly defeated their opponents. Several of the games were very close and in some contests the Panthers waited late to turn on the steam. But, the trophy is on the wall. After clinching the Southeastern Regionals, the Panthers made the trek to Iowa for the World Series. Their skills took them far in this tournament as well. They finished #3 in the nation. No doubt the Panthers have set their goal for next year, # 1 BABY!!

Andy Roberts is breaking in the next pitcher who is sure to strike out all of the batters the other teams send against him.

Lia Pate kept Landon McClain company during the games. The Panthers could only dress out so many players and Landon was not included. He didn't seem to mind until the concession stand ran out of his favorite popsicle.

David May watches Brett Steele's throw take out another batter.

Sean Player accepts congratulations from a dedicated fan.

The Panthers dominated both batting and fielding scoring 39 points to only 26 points in the 5 game tournament.

...AND LAST WE PART OUR WAYS...

The 136 annual commencement of Southern took place on May 27, 1995 at 3:30 in Boutwell Auditorium. Dr. Donald Carey Harrison spoke to the class on the coming revolutions in science and his advice to us for surviving is this revolution. The Robert Hewlin Jackson Meritorious Scholarship Award was given to Ivey Elizabeth Johnson for having the highest academic average, a perfect 4.0. Thomas M. Hackney and Dr. Donald C. Harrison were awarded a Doctor of Laws Honoris Causa and Robert E. Fannin was awarded a Doctor of Divinity Honoris Causa. 30 students graduated Phi Beta Kappa and 13 students graduated as Honors Program Senior Scholars. 105 Bachelor of Arts were awarded with 28 cum laude, 8 magna cum laude, and 5 summa cum laude graduates. 183 Bachelor of Sciences were awarded with 30 cum laude, 17 magna cum laude, and 6 summa cum laude. 5 Bachelor of Fine Arts were awarded as well as 2 Bachelor of Music. 35 graduates received their Master of Arts in Public and Private Management. 58 students listed some 98 graduate programs and scholarships to which they had been accepted prior to May 10, 1995.
